We live in an ever changing and demanding world in which the business environment is subject to seemingly relentless instability – and especially now with the consequences of the global economic climate.

Project Managers find themselves faced with increasingly tough choices and pressures as they seek to deliver projects in often uncertain and difficult circumstances.

How can a Project Manager succeed in managing these pressures, both project and personal, in an increasingly constrained environment?

Using our proven mix of presentations by industry experts, the sharing of real case studies and facilitated workshops, this PIPMG meeting will explore the vital contribution project management tools and techniques can make by:-

- taking a fresh look at how to balance the competing drivers of cost, quality and time when operating under constraints
- identify the critical constraints Pharmaceutical Project Managers face and practical ways to operate within, or overcome, these constraints
- sharing practical advice and tips to help us to be more effective in our roles in areas including personal time management, and surviving reorganisation and change
